

The New Indian Express

Wednesday, August 10, 2011

Jamming all the way to freedom

Celebrate Freedom with The Sonido Jam Room at Jain International Residential School, Kanakapura Road, on August 15

On the occasion of Independence Day, Sonido Musicals Ltd will present The Sonido Jam Room – Celebrating Freedom, which will be held at Jain International Residential School on August 15, 4 pm onwards.

A four hour non-stop pulsating musical event reverberating through the night, the event will witness bands of various hues and fresh talent from the city coming together to commemorate the freedom of music.

Including performances by students as young as eleven years, to a fusion feature by teachers for the very first time, the Sonido Jam Room, is a platform

Venue: Jain International Residential School, Jakkasandra Post, Kanakapura Road, Bangalore

Time: 4 pm to 8 pm

Entry: Free

to scout young talent and encourage passion for music. "We at the Jain international School strongly encourage students to pursue music as a career and this event is an opportunity for us to showcase our musical talent. Also August 15, being Independence Day, we aim to make the children realise the joy of freedom and the responsibility that comes with it, through this music extravaganza," says wing commander Ganesh Sharma, principal and CEO of Jain International Residential School.

Founded in 1999 by JGI, JIRS aims include the holistic development of its students in grades four to twelve towards enriching the quality of life.

From Distortion Culture, a progressive rock band that have been in the music world for the last couple of years, to fresh sounding bands like Orbital, Errorz, Blak and Wayt, Defyd and several others; the event is a healthy mix of the old and the new; and also includes genres that range from classic rock to pop to fusion to metal. So this freedom day, break away from the past and experiment with the innovative.

— Express Features